WHEREAS, also, it is important to understand how long the county has been carelessly disposing of records in this fashion; and

WHEREAS, further, clarifying whether the careless disposal of personal information is a county-wide problem or is limited to the Social Services Department is important to make sure that applicants for county services in all departments have their information protected; and

WHEREAS, knowing how many individuals have had their personal information exposed to release in this fashion is useful in determining the breadth of the problem; and

WHEREAS, likewise, determining whether these individuals have been notified that their information has been compromised would assist in determining what steps, if any, individuals should take to avoid negative consequences of the release of private information; and

WHEREAS, additionally, determining the current location of information that was left at the curb for disposal is necessary to make sure that information is not currently accessible; and

WHEREAS, moreover, knowing whether Erie County or any of its employees is subject to criminal or civil liability as a result of disposing personal information in a careless manner is important for personnel and budgetary reasons; and

WHEREAS, furthermore, understanding Erie County's current privacy policy will assist the Legislature in its oversight capacity; and

WHEREAS, the past disposal of personal information in a careless fashion cannot be corrected simply by changing policies going forward; and
